Total Patient Rehabilitation Is Kenny Foundation Objective

Minneapolis, Minn.—Teaching patients to develop to maximum use whatever muscular movement they have left, following injury or illness, is the aim of the total rehabilitation program of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny foundation, according to R. Bruce Reinecker, president.

Techniques originated by the late Sister Elizabeth Kenny for treatment of polio and paralytic fever and developed further by the foundation bearing her name have been found effective in the care of many crippling and handicapping diseases, Reinecker pointed out.

"Important as this treatment is," he said, "it still is only one phase of the Kenny rehabilitation program for victims of neuromuscular disabilities and diseases, including polio."

"Along with treating patients to develop any remaining physical movements, our medical and other staffs seek to help them solve other problems stemming from their disabilities. Wage earners, for example, often are taught new occupations. Homemakers are instructed in household short-cuts. Children of school age attend classes while hospitalized, or are taught by a bedside teacher.

"An adaptive equipment engineer designs and creates mechanical aids for individual patients. A recreational director supervises children at play and assists adults in developing hobbies. A social worker is available to help patients and their families work out financial problems. Emotional problems are dealt with by a psychologist or psychiatrist."

The Kenny foundation's program of direct patient aid, medical research, grants to universities and individual doctors as well as support of the activities of the American Rehabilitation foundation, its subsidiary, is made possible through contributions of the public, Reinecker concluded.

Hundreds of doctors from the United States and abroad have received specialized training in the treatment and rehabilitation of polio patients and those with other neuromuscular diseases from the Sister Elizabeth Kenny foundation.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

BY HOWARD F. SIMMONS
 Hancock County Agent

Important changes were made in the Mississippi Water Rights Law by the 1888 Legislature. Persons who have actually used water from surface streams must file a claim with the Board of Water Commissions, Jackson, Mississippi, to have their water rights established.

After December 31, priority dates of all claims will be based on filing dates rather than the date the water use was initiated.

FEEDER LAMBS

If you need feeder lambs, chance are the local fall sales might be the best places to get them.

Western lambs are high and heavy this year. Perhaps they are not quite so heavy as last year, but it looks as if they will be somewhat higher.

The right kinds of ewe lambs are costing around $45 and weighing about $200 for you to make a profit on $250 feeder lambs the price next spring should range from $225 to $250.

Dates and places of the fall lamb pools are: September 18, Greenville; November 12, Jackson; November 13, Macon; and November 14, Greenville.

WOOL MARKETING

A great improvement was evident in the manner in which wool from Hancock County was prepared for market and sold on September 12. But there is still room for more improvement.

A better job of tagging, storing and preparation would mean more money for the producer and save on marketing expense.

Despite the improvement, much time was lost this year removing the twins, tags and trash from the fleeces. Discarded and matted fleeces came by shearing and packing and were later returned to the producer as waste.

Producers are now urged to file their fleeces with the county agent before they are sheared.

State Fair Exhibit

Exhibit to be shown at the State Fair in Jackson, Oct. 11, will be the exhibit on the direction of the Mississippi Association of Future Farmers.

Under the direction of A. P. Satterree, State Advisor, A. G. Satterree, State Advisor, Secretary and Don Hamilton, State FFA president, the exhibit will feature 444 production methods and will consist of miniature houses and equipment organized to make complete layout for a farmer to produce 2,000 laying hens.

The exhibit will consist of three houses and equipment including feeders, waterers, etc., and information on cost and expected profits from a flock of 2,000 laying hens. The exhibit will be located in the southwest section of the agricultural building.

In addition to the egg production exhibit, four FFA state chapters will exhibit in booths as follows: Michael Yarbrough from Baldwin, Miss., will put on an exhibit depicting his work as a Future Farmer. Michael was second place winner in the State Star Future Farmer contest and has a well-rounded career in the FFA.

Among the various enterprises included in his farming program, that of which he will depict, will be his dairy program. This, along with leadership, cooperation, recreation, etc., activities will make up the 8 x 8 booth to be presented by Michael.

Martin Scrivner, State FFA Vice President from Carthage, will have booth, 8 x 8, showing the progress he has made in a FFA member. In addition to his dairy farming, he will also show some of his FFA activities.

Frank Gowan, Jr., of the McAdams Chapter, will put on a booth representing West Mississippi Vocational Agricultural Education district. Frank has been carrying on a farming program of general nature.

In his show, he will show in the booth some of the practices in improving corn production. He is a 100 bushel per acre corn producer himself and has been for the past two years.

Bucky Jones from Mars Hill School, and who was State Star Farmer in 1958, will depict his FFA activities in a 8 x 8 booth. Young Jones has received many honors in his FFA work and will try to show these various activities in his educational booth.

A large number of FFA boys will exhibit livestock. The pig show will be a special feature and will be limited only by the space available at the fair. There will probably be as many as 50 FFA boys to enter livestock, including pigs, beef cattle and dairy cattle in the Livestock Division of the State Fair.

One feature of the livestock show will be a class of bulls sponsored by the Sears Roebuck Foundation. There will be about eight bulls in this class.

Four Crews Are Working On Surveys Of Sixteenth Sections In Mississippi

State Land Commissioner Robert Graham said today that four crews of surveyors are now working on 16th section surveys involving over 1100 sections all over the State.

"The purpose of the survey," Mr. Graham said, "is to provide the necessary data to proceed with classification of 16th section land as to forest lands, cultivated lands, pasture lands, waste lands and commercial areas."

The purpose of the re-survey and classification is to determine who now holds leases and how best the 16th section lands may be put to full use in order that funds may be derived from them, Graham said.

The survey crews are headed by W. M. Smith, Grenada L. A. Connerly, Laurel; H. L. Bishop, Pinola; and D. F. Simmons of Purvis.

Upon completion of the survey, reports will be placed in a permanent record and used in preparing a report to the Legislature in 1960. In addition, reports will be filed with the Superintendent of Education in the County where each 16th section is situated.

It is the intention of the law to place the forest lands under the management of the Mississippi Forestry Commission upon completion of the survey and classification of the said lands.

Mr. Graham also said that copies of the complete H. B. No. 388 are available to interested parties from his office.

Mississippi Highway Patrol Reports Highway Deaths Toll Continues To Rise

September 24, Jackson, Miss.—Traffic fatalities reported by the Mississippi Highway Patrol show that September's highway death toll is consistently high.

Last September, 80 persons were killed in traffic mishaps. Highway Patrol Boss Tom Scarborough states only one other month, December, tops September for traffic fatalities. Sixty-five were killed in December, 1956.

The total death count for the past two months, however, is 115, an appalling figure, Commissioner Scarborough stressed.

According to the Patrol head, many factors contribute to the high September highway toll. Shortening daylight hours, back-to-school traffic, changing weather, off-to-the-foothill larks, and rush last-minute Indian Summer trips all contribute.

It was at these September accidents that the Highway Patrol directed its enforcement crackdown more than a month ago. Radar was used extensively throughout Mississippi during August with satisfactory results, says the Patrol.

With the first bloody week of September behind, Mississippi's traffic toll is down more than 50 per cent. As of midnight September 7, the highway death count was reported at 6 killed. Fifteen died the first week of September 1957.

The Highway Patrol says: "Take it easy. Don't let the first nip of Fall nip you like falling leaves."

BEE-KEEPING AS A PROFITABLE VENTURE

While it is a relatively minor factor in Mississippi agriculture, bee-keeping has been growing in popularity during recent years with total production slightly higher this year than last. Bee-keeping for commercial production of honey and beeswax or for pollination of fruit and seed crops has been as sound as any other agricultural enterprise. The capital outlay necessary for this venture is small and many people have gone into the bee-keeping as a sideline. Many have paid off mortgages on their farms or homes by raising bees on parttime basis.
